Racy Results

KNEELAND RACE TRACK
Lexington, Ky., May 24—Clear; track fast.

FIRST RACE—The Sigma Chi. Purse 8 gallons beer. For 2-year-olds. Distance, 5 furlongs.

Settle (Butler) .....	5.20	4.00	2.80
Murphy (Rawlins) .....		3.40	2.20
Kappa House (Cady) .....			12.70

Settle away fast was much the best. Butler rated her easy in the back stretch, fought off all challenges and finished her under wraps. Murphy, the favorite, was fractions at the bar-rrier, but made up ground and finished courageously. Kappa House, carrying top weight, closed with a rush.

SECOND RACE—Coca-Cola Handicap. Steeplechase. Purse, afternoon at the Canary Cottage. For three-year-olds and upward. Distance, four blocks.

Shearer (Thomas) .....	15.00	6.50	4.40
Sue Smith (Luques) .....		4.80	2.60
Nadelstein (Nevers) .....			11.00

Shearer, away slow, saved strength as the leaders fell one by one. In the hedge-crossed stretch was urged past Smith and held on gamely. Smith went wide at the turn and allowed Shearer to sneak up on the inside. Nadelstein, overburdened, finished third under terrific punishment.

THIRD RACE—The Linden Walk Flowers. Purse 1 case Bourbon. For 2-year-old maidens and fillies. Distance, four highballs.

Woods (Dick) .....	5.50	5.20	3.00
Bakhaus (Greathouse) .....		2.50	2.70
Hardwick (Douglas) .....			5.60

Woods, showing no early speed, romped deep in the field while in the back stretch. When the leaders slackened, Gamble Dick made his bid. Woods raced alongside of Bakhaus down the stretch and won by a knee under Dick's kicking. Bakhaus, who experienced trouble on deciding who would jockey her, broke well, rated the lead, but could not outrace Woods in the drive. Hardwick wisecracked with the tailenders but finished swiftly when promised beer if she ran in the money.

FOURTH RACE—The Tavern Stakes. Purse, Swiss on rye and one beer. For four-year-olds and upward. Distance, six furlongs.

Harper (Huddleston) .....	14.40	7.00	4.60
Hendren (Miller) .....		4.20	3.10
Hickman (L. Potter) .....			2.50

Harper, showing excellent training, broke fast and rode the Bill Daly. She was never headed, won by seven lengths, and finished breezing. Hendren raced second all the way but could not menace the winner despite a stretch pole vault tried by Miller. Hickman, the favorite, carried most weight and claimed a foul when she discovered Potter carried a bottle of beer in each saddle bag. Lexy Sexy rode an indifferent race and drew a five-day suspension from the stew-ards.

FIFTH RACE—The Sigma Nu. Purse, Invitations for one year to all Sigma Nu formal dinners. Distance, one mile. For abstemious three-year-olds.

Wilson (Mades) .....	7.40	4.30	2.20
Jones (Holster) .....		3.30	3.00
Lady Myrtle (Maddox) .....			6.00

After three choruses of "Sweet Adeline" the jockies mounted. Wilson, broke last, for Mades was finishing his ninth beer, and chased the field for half the race. At the three quarters, Wilson moved up on the inside and finished under punishment. Jones, lagging at the final turn, finished vigorously under Holster's endearing urging. Lady Myrtle, deep in the pack, responded to heavy R. O. T. C. shouting and Maddox drove gamely into third money. Pearl, a long shot, failed to acknowledge Jockey Ennis's whipping and plodded across the line last.

SIXTH RACE—The Kernel Kneelcap. Purse $40,000. For three-year-old maidens and fillies. Distance seven galleys of trype. Start good. Won driving. Place same. Went to press 4:10 off 6:40. Winner by Paris-Kappa Kappa Gamma. Trainer, Phil Delta Theta.

Kirkpatrick (Dryden) .....	47.90	22.00	12.30
Chauvet (Spencer) .....		7.00	4.60
Quigley (Chepeleff) .....			8.00

Also runs—McCammish (Bud Anderson), Riley (Riddell), Earle (Borries), Reagan (Richardson), Robinson (Salyers), Minihan (Arthur), Tucker (Harris), Gentry (Gillenwater), Doyle (Ramsey), Winkler and Stephens lost their mounts.

The field broke under a blanket and went to the first turn in a pack. Entering the back stretch, Riley, tickled by Riddell's remarks, scooted into the lead. Going into the back turn, Kirkpatrick made her move when Dryden threatened to expose her in the scandal column. With the rail blocked, Dryden whipped his mount to the outside, circled the field, took command in the stretch, and won by a projected patella. Chauvet ran third to the stretch and finished under bruising punishment administered by a beer bottle in Spencer's hand. Quigley, who trotted during the first five galleys, listened to Chep's line, closed with a burst when he told her the joke about the missionary.

(Nadelstein waived entrance in this race to compete in the second sprint in which she finished third.)

SEVENTH RACE—The Athletes' Attempt. Purse, varsity letter. Distance, 80-yard run. For ten-year-olds and upward.

Nevins (Robinson) .....	113.30	55.00	15.90
Shipp (Spickard) .....		6.70	4.00
King (Garland) .....			5.50

Nevins, snubbed in the batting, broke fast but was rated in hand through the back pull. Entering the stretch, Nevins overtook King and finished under sure-fire coaching by Dick Robinson. Shipp, always a contender, was aroused in the stretch, and finished gamely. King led through the back stretch, faltered in the drive, but held on for the show.

Picknecking Hod Greeleys Assassinate Bovine Beauts

The annual brawl enjoyed by members of the Kernel staff was thrown in the depths of the wilderness Saturday afternoon when the Home-Breakers' Club on the Kentucky river resounded with the unseemly guffaws and shouts of, "Hey, Kerler!" The natives took one little peep at the intruders and went back to the peaceful occupation of head-hunting, whilst the erstwhile journalistic stooges violated the peace of the wilderness by splashing their merry way about the river, to the terrible fright of the twenty-foot crocodiles that inhabit the said stream.

Ross J. Chepeleff, editor-in-chief, said that he would never again attempt to corral all the wild denizens of one University into one picnic again, and stated that he would sign a pledge to never again go in swimming when the water held the temperature of an Arctic bay. George Kerler, scandalmonger extraordinary, agreed with Chepeleff and declared that personally he preferred the music of Andy Anderson to the musical splashing of Ray Lathrem, Tommy Watkins, and other dolphins of the deep.

With the return of night to the peaceful (?) Kentucky countryside the journalists returned to civilization in the various vehicles that graced the excursion. Songs from these vehicles so frightened some of the domestic animals along the way that several cows died from convulsions, while one horse broke a leg fleeing from the roadside. Silas Axehandle, gentleman farmer, filed suit in the Kentucky Court of Appeals today for the imprisonment of Robert Rankin and Tommy Watkins for the death of his cows. Mr. Axehandle swore that the bovine beauties died after hearing Rankin and Watkins sing "The Desert Song."

Alive Wood Bailey sat in the corner and moped for Cliff Shaw.

Contrary to false reports published in local papers excepting The Kernel, Major Gen. William E. Cole WILL be present for Colonel Brewery's Blowout, the annual field day, tomorrow, to act as reviewing officer for the sweating, stumbling troops of the University R. O. T. C. Maj. Gen. Cole, who is really warm, especially in summer, is the big boss of the Fifth corps area of the United States Army. Not only will he watch the soldier lads walk but he will also talk his head off at a dinner for reserve officers Wednesday night.

On Stoll field, where the powerful University Wildcats have not galloped to a Rose Bowl invitation, the University's glorified Boy Scouts will walk and walk and walk. The regiment will start walking at 2:30 p. m. and will stagger along until the reviewing officers become exhausted from watching.

Sour Mash, Chep's Funny Mag Is Due To Be Publishd-Oh--Shucks We Don't Know When

Sour Mash, that funny magazine published sometime each month, will again make its appearance, this being the last number of the year, and being dedicated to seniors and exams. The editors say that the mag will be funnier than hell, so go ahead and buy it if you like.

Oh, yeah, it will come out sometime this week if the editors get time to work on it before exams, and even if they don't it will definitely be on the campus before exams are over so that you all can take home a copy. Chepeleff is still editing it, this being his last number after which time George Kerler, that humorous scandal writer, will assume editorship. Spencer is also making his exit as associate editor with this number. In the mag will be the regular stuff plus more dirty jokes and cartoons. Look for it.

Soldier Boys Will Stagger Through Drill Formations On Cow Lot Tomorrow

During the afternoon the poor dopes who were not satisfied with two years of marching but insisted on taking an advanced course will get to stop walking long enough to get commissions as second lieutenants. They will take an oath of office which will be something else to sarry. For their bravery in helping protect our United States the new lieutenants will be given a free feed Wednesday night but they will have to listen to Maj. Gen. "Warmy" Cole talk.

Show off drills in which some of the husker looking lads of the Pershing Rifles will fight the Civil War all over again with a different ending will play an important part on the afternoon's carnival. The Confederate Squad will wander around in some anemic maneuvers after which Mrs. Robert M. Watt, prexy of the Lexington chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, will wish a Confederate battle flag off on them. Luckily for the soldier laddies there will be no battle attached to the flag.

The evil two-faced green head of politics will rear and breathe oh so foul halitosis and the Reserve Officers Association of Kentucky will hold its annual election Wednesday at the city hall.

A brawl open to such of the public as care to associate with soldiers will follow the at which the aforementioned Maj. Gen. "Warmy" Cole will talk.

During the show on the Stoll battlefield some of the better dirty-nosers among the students will be given awards maybe some nice red or blue ribbons of some red, white and blue stick candy.

Lieutenant Sergeant Brewery announced yesterday that warm water with salt in it is good for aching feet.

A Kernel photographer, on th escene during the raid last night, found this co-ed in the process of rearranging her person after a wild session of truckin'.

PAT HALL CO-ED FIGURES IN RAID

REPEAT RAID ON WOMEN'S DORMS BY POLICE REVEALS CO-EDS ARE STILL TRUCKIN'

Another Pat hall coed almost exhausted in the truckin' contest which police say was the "worst they ever seed."

Another raid upon the Women's dormitories revealed last night that the modern coed is developing her legs not by kicking the gong around as did her mothers and grandmother, but thru the medium of trucking.

"How times have changed!" ejaculated Chief Vigilante Kelley of the Lexington Vice Squad, in an interview with members of the fourth estate, after the raid which took place in the wee hours of the morning. "All we could see," he said, in a disappointed tone, "were legs, legs, legs—gals were trucking on every floor, in every room, and in both buildings. It was a horrible sight."

Survivors of the raid told breath-taking stories of their escape from the Dormitory prison. "It was horrible," said an unidentified Sigma Nu who leaped from the third floor when the Vice Squad entered the building. "All I remember is legs, legs, legs."

An investigation committee has been appointed to determine the causes of the raid, which many officials state could have been prevented had the Vice Squad been properly paid off. The number of injured has not been released.

BALL KNOCKERS END YEAR'S ORGY WITH TRIUMPH

The boys who spend their time knocking little balls around closed their annual orgy Saturday afternoon on the University tennis courts, as they managed to outmaneuver a pack of Mountaineers from Berea College to the tune of 8-1.

Two Wildcat tennisters wound up their college careers Saturday and put them in their pockets, while half of them were left for the profane gaze of posterity, in the halls of Kentucky athletic fame. These two snarling Wildcats are Warfield Donohue and Francis Montgomery. Montgomery is a veteran of the squad, with four years' experience at the University, and holds a fine record. Donohue, in his first year on the varsity squad, played in the No. 1 position all season, and exhibited rare skill in all his matches, both singles and doubles.

The Wildcat court squad, successors to the famous "Brain Trust" team of last year, have won eight matches to two losses. One of these losses was incurred early in the season against Sewanee, and the other against Michigan State a little later. This record for the season compares favorably even with last year's Phi Beta Kappas, who lost only one game.

Flash! Bailey Marries Shaw At Bedside

By ALICE WOOD BAILEY
Mr. and Mrs. J. Y. Bailey announce the marriage of their daughter, Alice Wood, to Mr. Clifford Moussey Shaw, of Louisville. The marriage took place at the groom's bedside in the Louisville Baptist Hospital, where he is confined with acute hangoveritis.

Miss Bailey told Kernel reporters yesterday that she finally "landed him" after a year's "court-in." The groom, who is also afflicted with lockjaw, merely bowed his head to the question, "Do you take this woman?"

Ball Player Is In Embryonic Stage As Sports Writer

A Toledo (O.) sports writer asked Manager Bert Niehoff of the Louisville American Association club the condition of Woodrow Williams, Louisville shortstop, who was taken to a Toledo hospital recently for observation. "Williams has been ordered to the hospital for observation by a brain specialist," Niehoff replied. "He's been having dizzy spells and will be assigned as sports writer if his condition does not improve."

Four Hundred Inmates Will Be Freed On June Fourth

BY SAVE DALYERS
It was reported under strict promise of secrecy last night by those close to Warden Frank L. McVey that approximately around about 400 inmates of the institution will be totally released and asked emphatically not to return for the next 50 years, next week in a ceremony which will climax a series of celebrations of their departure often referred to in the past as Commencement Week.

The Official program, according to all we can read in the papers, says that it will get off to a half-splittings (and head-splitting) start with the annual University Field Day, referred to variously as "UK's May Meadow-Lark" and "Reserve Officers' Red-Hot Rifle Race," tomorrow when it gets the hottest on Stoll field. We all know the rigors of this event and will all flock down to the stadium to "see the soldiers suffer," I am sure. After everyone has been wore out by the afternoon's event, the day will be climaxed (or anti-climaxed) by a brawl to be thrown for those R. O. T. C. officers who are still able to stand, at the Phoenix hotel.

We will then get a well-earned rest, except for an examination now and then, until Thursday week which will be Alumni Day. This is when all the old inmates will rush back to look the old place over and slap all the other "old boys" on the back and look them over to see how they have fared since receiving their pardon in years past.

Also on this day the Board of Trustees meets with Warden McVey to give the final decision on the inmates to be liberated and select those who have fallen by the wayside due to commensalizing "field-day flu" or other reasons. Seniors will also have a say in the matter. (Continued to Page Four)

"Send two cherry cokes, one orangeade, with lots of ice, and one toasted cheese sandwich to room 34, Boyd hall—no, not 24, 34—right away please. Did you get that order straight?"

Promptly five or ten minutes later, according to the size of the order, the side door of Boyd hall opens, emitting a freckle-faced, affable 16-year-old boy, who is known to the co-eds dwelling in the residence halls, as "Davy."

Wearing a crisply clean service jacket, and a haircut that definitely brands him as "collegiate," this is the person who brings big, brown bags containing the cokes, sandwiches, and other tid-bits that go to satisfy the ravenous appetites of college girls between 10 and 10:30 o'clock every night.

"Say, do ya mean you wanta write sumpin about me?" he asked, all the while his face beaming with that glow which comes to one who has suddenly found himself important.

Inclined to be reticent in speech at first, he soon began to swing into a natural, easy style of talk. Meanwhile two girls had arrived to claim their bags of food, and the smattering of conversation was hushed while he made the correct change for them.

Frustrated a bit by this unexpected interview, "Davy" dropped a dime, which went blaring and bouncing down the stairway into the basement. Quick as a flash, with the good nature and energy that makes him so well liked as a service boy, he was soon at the bottom of the steps, recovered the slippery lucre, and came bounding up again.

"Yeah, I've been working for two years for this restaurant, but this summer the boss says he's gonna put me on as a fountain boy. I'll like that, but, gee whizz, I'll miss delivering at the halls." This was a long statement coming from "Davy," but it showed how much he likes the job he works at every night from 7:30 until 11 o'clock.

A student at Morton Junior High School, he allots himself from 3 until 6 o'clock in the afternoon to study, and really does study, he blandly replied, when I asked about the time spent in the pursuit of knowledge.

The highest priced order "Davy" has ever delivered at the halls was a $3 one, and paradoxically enough the next night he brought a three-cent stamp to the same girl.

"Davy" thinks the seniors most dignified, the freshman the prettiest and had rather deliver orders to Patterson hall than Boyd. His reason for this last statement, he eagerly explained to be because the Pat hall girls tipped him, while he firmly believes the Boyd hall residents to be tightwads. Hurriedly scurrying through the door, he then vanished into the night to be back with hot and cold food, the second trip of the fifteen he makes every night.

MILITARY

By L. T. IGLEHART

"What are those things—over there on the clothes line?... You say they are cadets. Now what in the world are they hanging there for?... Oh, to dry out. Been in a parade. I see. Well, they certainly must get awfully hot."

Of course now, I'm not a member of the R. O. T. C. My feet are flat. Disgustingly flat. I've always wondered why, when they were dishing out arches, that they didn't give me a pair of "supreme-built No-Flexes," or "Abner's aesthetic arches for active animals." But no; they just took two pieces of shin bone and attached them at right angles to my ankles. Naturally, the army turns me down—flat, but I have only begun to fight. I tape up the center of each foot and spring lightly into the office of Chief Catchum-Cadet.

"You certainly almost missed one of your best bets," I say, meaning myself. "Uh huh. But you see, major—oh! general, is it—well, you see, general, I thought that—." Ha! Ha! He says I'm not supposed to think. Gad, what a sense of humor. He further adds, in an off-hand manner, that I have been skipping classes. It seems the doc was only joking when he said the army didn't need me. O. K. big boy, you got me—just what are you going to do?

He seems to know his own mind, because here I am in the armory. I realize now where people catch St. Vitus Dance. Yes siree—in these wool shirts.

"Say, sir, I've decided I don't want to play. I'm afraid that this stuffy atmosphere will bring back my old cough." My old cough!

Boy, that was a fast one. Yeah! A mighty fast one. I certainly get plenty of atmosphere out here, hot-footing it up and down the parade ground. "Oh, no—puff, puff—corporate, never too fast for me." I should say not. Never too fast. As long as we're going, we might as well get there. No sense in dilly-dallying. The sooner we get to one end of the field, the sooner we can come back to this end, and the faster we can go back to the other end. Oh, it works out beautifully, and you can really cover territory. Of course, it's pretty much the same, but after all, it's territory. Oh! Oh! There goes my gun.

"Now, wasn't that silly, corporal?" Well, he doesn't have to be so dog-gone agreeable. "Hot? I should say not. I'm as cool as a cucumber." Ha! Ha! Can I take it? Frankly, no. Even a cucumber gets hot wrapped in a woolen blanket, and who am I to out do a cucumber?

Oh! "No, of course not, Number-One-Front-Rank, you didn't hurt me. No, the gun's really light. You just forgot that I was back of you, and thought that you would rest your right arm by letting go of the butt of the rifle. It's all my fault. I must seem an awful nuisance, following you around like this, but the corporal said that I was to be number one, rear rank, and whither you goest, I must go. Scarcastic? No, I'm not being sarcastic. It must be indigestion that gives my words their acid tone. Say, you're going to hurt someone, holding the rifle like that. Oh!

Oh! Quit! Stop! O. K. O. K. I'll get up, Roomie, but put that pillow down. What time is it? Boy, I sure had one whale of a dream, and am I glad I'm flat-footed!

HTK-COMMONS

Students fought madly to gain entrance to their classes yesterday morning after an awful, terrible tornado wrecked everything on the campus except the Commons. Witnesses at the scene of the crime said that everything was mighty upset.

President McVey, with a flower pot on his head, said: "I wish somebody had warned me." Dean T. T. Jones, N. Y. A. student, exclaimed: "Heck!"

Reporters who found Professor Robertson in the aquarium, said that he invited them in for a swim. He stated: "I lost a rare ogles-bersanumous fossil."

Dr. White, psychopathic case on the University of Kentucky campus in Kentucky, said: "It was a galvanic reflex."

Miss Rebecca Averill, wedged between the science building and the library which had slidden together,

HTK-BY THE MAN WHO SEES.

The campus was magically alive and flowing that particular spring day as the Man stroled along to keep a luncheon appointment. He felt at peace with the world, for he had on a becoming new hat, a new spring suit and his feet felt comfortable even though his shoes were brand new.

He reached a cross walk just as the lights turned against the avenue traffic in favor of downtown campus traffic.

A handsome young woman in a despondent spring outfit, combining the softest tones of tan and brown sprang forward to get across the walk before the onrushing cars could get into real motion. She jostled the Man, knocked his hat askew, stepped on his new shoes. But it availed her nothing for she found herself involved in a maelstrom which made her turn back to the lane.

The Man eyed her in disapproval. She looked like a gentlewoman. But evidently she was not. But, he reflected, gentlewomanliness on the campus was dead and buried. The day, somehow, seemed less resplendent.

To You, Seniors Congratulations And To All A Most Pleasant Vacation

But his faith in woman's courtesy to man was to have a new birth.

IS ZAT SO!

At a recent dinner attended by employees of the Pasadena (Cal.) Star-News and Post, this story was told by the toastmaster on George Fugate, advertising manager of both papers.

The advertising man was reported as having called the office from his home to ask the results of the fourth race at the Bay Meadows track.

"Just a moment, please," the switchboard operator said as she plugged his call into the editorial department.

"Editorial," answered a new voice in the department.

"Thank you," said the advertising man, and hung up. Five minutes later he called back.

"Say, were you trying to kid me? I've looked all through the form sheet and don't find any horse by that name even entered."

Writer Finds That You Can't Win On Term Papers

By DON IRVINE

Every spring, along with flowers and birds and rose fever, come term papers. Term papers, for the benefit of the blessed who have escaped them, may be defined as verbal mud-pies slung in to the pros just in time to lower one's grade. They take three weeks to worry over, two hours to write, and have footnotes.

In order to write a successful term paper, one must first get on the right side of the professor. The best way is to wait until the day before it is due and then go to professor's office and wake him out of a profound slumber.

"Good morning, Professor Krudd," you say cheerily to the old patsy-puss. "I have come to inquire about my term paper."

"I am the one who ought to be inquiring about that," he gripes. You laugh loudly.

"What subject shall I take?" you question. Here one should always put one's feet upon the professor's desk and light up a cigar. The professor is cogitating; shameless man!

The professor now buries his head in his bookcase and appears to have gone into a trance. At length he emerges and gives you a subject.

"Okay, loaf-nose," you gaily say, and then leave before the walls begin to fall.

Having won the teacher to your point of view, you must now write the paper. The first thing is to get a book out of the library. Any book will do. You carry the book about from class to class, looking thoughtfully at its covers at intervals, until an inspiration (idea) comes to you. This inspiration should make you quiver all over or it is not a bona fide term paper inspiration. When this has happened you must rush over to the bookstore and buy some typing paper, or, if the thing is to be done in longhand, some wintergreen peppermints.

That night you sprawl yourself at your desk behind a wall of frosty beer bottles, temporarily full. With a great show of industry you lay out your fresh paper, open your book, and put out some old geology notes for appearance's sake. Then you drink the beer and sleep until midnight in your chair. At that hour you awaken, realize that you must not overwork, and go to bed, first setting the alarm for five o'clock (after letting the bell run down).

The next morning you go to class, having written out the term paper between sips of breakfast coffee, and hand it in to good old Professor Krudd, who, despite his rough exterior, has a heart of gold, only harder. Days later he frigidly returns it, and you flunk the course despite the fact that you sat up until midnight over the darned term paper.

dead for lo, these many years, and who will come alive only when you too become seniors and cast off your academic shackles to breathe once more the lusty and tainted air of the great world.

As graduates we will never again be forced to bind our minds within the musty text books and antiquated lecture notes dictated to us by our spectre-monk profs. Never again will we have to decide between cramming for finals and enjoying the show. We'll just go to the show. As graduates we will be able to decide for ourselves what books we want to read, what we want to listen to in the way of lectures, what we want to sit next to, and what entertainment we want when we want it.

No longer must we wend our wraithlike ways along the cloistered halls of learning, haunted by the ghosts of collegiate tradition and by the countless generations of departed stoogents and professors. No longer need we worship the campus gods of dead culture and the mythical shadows of grades and honors.

We're free. We're alive. We're going to read the tabloids instead of the encyclopedias. We're going to find out for ourselves what this living business is all about. Hail and farewell. We who are about to leave salute you!

SARAH JONES

School Teacher Extraordinary

(A Story With A Moral)

Sarah Jones awoke and stretched and yawned twice. Now Sarah Jones was conventional and she had been waking and stretching and yawning like this for thirty odd years, although her age remained a stationary twenty-one. But this morning there was a little deviation from the conventional because lying in the bed beside her was what seemed to be a man. Sarah Jones was taken aback by this, for she was not in the habit of waking to find bounders like this, and he was a bounder, in her bed. Well she handled the matter in a rational manner and decided to cogitate upon it before she acted. She began to reflect on the actions of the night before and wondered if she had gotten pickled and married this monstrosity, and he was a monstrosity, because his hair was red, and that alone was ridiculous, his hair was red and his face was white and it looked like a handful of flour thrown upon scarlet velvet. She started to wake him and ask him what the hell, but she thought that a little silly, after all you couldn't just wake a man and ask him what the hell. Being, as I have said before, a strictly conventional person, she dressed, and still this uncouth rascal remained in a state of dormancy, sleeping as though through three alarm fires and earthquakes.

Like I say, she dressed, and after due consideration decided to go on to school because there was to be a new principal today and for her to be late meeting her first class under the new principal, well really! She went to a little restaurant around the corner intending to eat a hurried breakfast, but the waitress knew some heavenly gossip and in spite of Sarah's conventions, she was a woman. When she looked up from her conversation she was already half an hour late. Well, she went on to school and the new principal called her into his office, but she didn't lose her job because the new principal, of all things, had red hair! Now, we shouldn't draw conclusions from this little story for, as I say, Sarah Jones was a strictly conventional person.

The guests were Misses Jane Godbout, Wanda Frazier, Virginia Bengel, June Lang, and Dorothy Santen. The housemother left Saturday for the rest of the year.

Alpha Xi Delta
The Alpha Xi's celebrated the riddance of the nubs who will graduate this year at a buffet supper last Friday night. The onery guests were Pauline Harmon, Hazel Brown, Eleanor Davis, Lydia Tucker, Mary Miller, and their date, Bill Carroll.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon

Kentucky Epsilon of S. A. E. put on a buffet supper and beer party at the house Saturday. About five guests were present.

Phi Delta Theta

The Phi Delt's gave a house party last week-end which was enjoyed by each and every one. The guests included Posie Turner, Clarabelle Slutz, Fannie Busby, Carrie Burden, Sally Stepin, Sadie Gultz, Sophie Zilch, and Jennie Girdle.

Sigma Nu

The Euclid gents gave a benefit sewing party last night for the relief of Armenian sufferers. Hosts included Lady Myrtle Maddox, Tom Watkins, and George H. Kerler. Collection taken included two pennies and thirty buttons, plus innumerable slugs. The Sigma Nus declare that, with their help, Armenia will soon be out of the red.

Lambda Chi Alpha

At the annual discussion contest Epsilon Phi of Lambda Chi Alpha expelled several of the better class of so-called seniors from their midst Sunday night. Those who were among the rafters before it was over were: Guests, Dot Lancaster, Mary Bunton, Martha Shipp, Nancy Orrell, Mary Ann Stiltz, Willette Bruner, Martha Jackson, and Purl Collins. Departing from the rolls are Carl Van- noy, Jimmie Richardson, James Stephens, Earl Martin, Jimmie Richmond, and Weston Winkler.

Scabbard and Blade whooped it up at a dinner followed by a torso tussle at the Lexington Country Club Monday night held in honor of the national government inspector, Major Cheating. The music was furnished by Annie Philander- son and her three-piece band.

HTK—NOTHING HANNESPS

More than 100 University students were not injured when they were not in the Library yesterday when it was not destroyed by a fire which did not result from ineffective wiring.

The injured were not taken to the Good Samaritan hospital where they were not reported not resting well last night. No doctors hold no hope for the lives of none of them.

When not being interviewed by a reporter, Dean T. T. Jones did not issue a statement in which he did not say what he thought the extent of the damage would not be.

No information concerning the blaze could not be obtained by The Kernel before it did not go to press late last night.

Alumni News

ROBERT K. SALYERS, Secretary

ALUMNI—the days are approach- ing for you to renew your versatili- ty in the art of fraternizing. These days are Thursday, June 3, and Friday, June 4. There'll be class luncheons where you can renew ac- quaintances with the "old gang" and the Alumni Banquet where you can sit with former classmates and b sure of spending a couple of the most enjoyable hours of your life. And you'll also have ample time to stroll over the campus, refresh your memory of the old days, meet the old pros, and note the rapidly changing campus. Take a look at the reunion commencement calen- dar and then plan to be present for two days of fun and enjoyment.

Principal speaker at the Alumni Banquet will be Dr. William Car- penter MacCarty, '00, of Rochester, Minn. Dr. MacCarty is a writer, lecturer, and research worker in various medical and biological prob- lems. He is a Phi Beta Kappa, a member of various medical and surgical organizations, and has been a specialist in surgical pathology and biopathology at the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minnesota, since 1906. Dr. MacCarty is also a former president of Sigma Xi. His ad- dress is 820 Third street S. W., Rochester.

SPORTS? HARTNETT CROWD SCHALK

Gabby Hartnett once said that they'd have to tear his uniform off to get him out of baseball. The valuable broad-faced Chicago Cub catcher has changed his mind to some extent. They won't have to rip off his uniform—if he finishes his career with more games played than any other catcher in the his- tory of big league baseball.

Hartnett has been told that little Ray Schalk, former White Sox re- ceiver, owns the present mark with a grand total of 1,755 games. Hartnett, the senior league's record holder, had a total of 1,588 before the start of the present season. That makes a difference of 167 games.

Gabby, who has passed the 36th year mark and is getting bigger with each campaign, nevertheless should eclipse Schalk's present standard, barring injuries.

The name, Charles L. Hartnett, is generously sprinkled amongst the catchers' sparkling records. Gabby holds the National League mark of ten times catching 100 or more games; for most games caught; for most consecutive years—six—catch- ing 100 or more games, and the major league mark for most con- secutive chances without an error— 452.

BALL KNOCKERS

While Coach Downing's varsity stooges have been warming the courts with their spectacular brand of play, the frosh have also been rather active. George May, Herbert Holman, Dave Ragland, J. C. Bristow, and Jesse Holbrook should form a neat addition to the varsity squad next season, in which the two positions vacated by Montgomery and Donohue will be open for contention. The frosh have been rather unlucky, with rain darkening most of their matches, but have been defeated only once in the season's competition.

Results of the Berea match:
Donohue (K) beat Gardner (B) 6-2, 6-3.
Evans (K) defeated Adams (B) 6-1, 6-2.
Englehardt (K) defeated Williams (B) 6-1, 6-2.
Montgomery (K) beat Keith (B) 6-0, 6-3.
Botts (K) defeated Blair (B) 6-1, 6-1.
Foster (K) defeated Davis (B) 6-3, 6-1.
Donohue and Evans (K) defeated Gardner and Adams (B) 6-4, 6-4.
Williams and Keith (B) defeated Englehardt and Wisner (K) 6-4, 6-4.

occur the baccalaureate sermon which will be delivered by none other than Warden McVey's brother, Dr. William Pitt McVey, of the First Methodist Church, Cairo, Illinois. After this, Warden and Mrs. McVey will be at home to all former inmates and those being released at Maxwell Place. That night all the inmates, old and present, and the new that can crowd into the Phoenix hotel ballroom will have their annual banquet.

Friday, the next day, will be the big day for the inmates. After standing in the hot sun for a few hours while the Commencement procession forms, the faculty members will find out which way is the Alumni gymnasium and the procession will proceed to that illustrious structure, where the final releasing ordeal will be executed, with Warden McVey at the giving end. The main address will be made by Mark Foster Ethridge (Brother to we members of the Fourth Estate) of the Courier-Journal and Louisville Times. Souvenirs of this affair for all graduating inmates will be white imitation sheepskin diplomas tied in beautiful blue ribbon.

Following the above ceremonies will be the annual luncheon in the Commons for everybody who has 50 cents and who is a graduate, alumni, or friend of the institution. Final event of the exhausting celebration will be the annual meeting of the alumni after the luncheon in the Faculty Loafing Room in McVey hall.

A good time will be had by all, we hope, and the inmates who are being released will kindly let us alone for a while and go out to warm up the cold, cold world with their shining countenances (a beautiful thought if we do say it).

I have just remembered that I have rambled through this story without remembering the word sex, and this is the "sex-star final" I will add that it is rumored that striptease dancing by various campus sweethearts will be held in front of the Alumni gym preceding the commencement exercises.

Two Bookworms Awarded Dough For Nothing Much

It was announced during the past week that two of the University senior students read very good books—at least that's what Miss Margaret King, Dr. George K. Brady, and Dr. Thomas D. Clark think. Of course, it's so easy to fool those three, that it seems a pity that more people didn't try for the award.

The first prize of $30 was given to Elizabeth Hardwick. When she was told of her victory, she gushed, "Oh, goody. Now I can do all the things I've always wanted to do—travel—see the world. I'm going to Cincinnati the first thing in the morning."

When Mary Frances McClain heard that she was the recipient of the $20 second prize, she could hardly contain herself, so overcome was she with the taste of victory. "I'm glad," she drooled.

All we can say, is that the next time Colonel Samuel M. Wilson makes an award, he does it for something sensible like the loudest news story of the year (Danziger is king there) instead of for the best libraries among the youths of the junior and senior classes.

HTK—PLATINUM BLONDS

With platinum blond and hennaed heads held high, thirty male "pioneers of fashion" recently defied pedagogical disapproval and derision of fellow students, firm in their conviction "if it's all right for the girls, it's all right for us, too."

Stares and laughter greeted the youths, students at a school near St. Louis, when they appeared with locks dyed in varying shades, ranging from "bricktop" to light pink, and from golden to platinum blond. "A foolish prank" was the comment of the school's head, who said he had found no reason for the latest "extra-curricular" activity, and added that he did not wish to dignify it by inquiring.

"Just for the heck of it" was the explanation of a senior who is a track star at the school. His black hair has turned to gold, and he thinks the novelty of the idea appealed to him.

Another senior, tossed platinum blond locks, rivaling Jean Harlow's, as he explained the technique of rinses and henna shampoos.

And the girls—"Oh, we think it's cute."

Delta Zeta
The graduating seniors of Delta Zeta were given the farewell at a supper party at Miss Tooth Pick's joint the other night.

All SuKy members and other vendors are urged to be present at an important affair to be held at 5 p. m. today in the basement of Alumni gymnasium. Liquid refreshments will be served to all present.

SEEING SENIORS

BY TOM WATKINS

As the current school year draws to a close, all the comment of months past that has been dammed up comes flowing forth about those who leave us forever next month to seek their fortunes in the cold, wide world. The word "senior" means one superior in age, rank, or office. In some circles it means the ones also superior in intellect, but this column refuses to recognize that classification. It rather means those who were lucky enough to amass, in at least eight years of college, a sufficient number of credits to ankle up the aisle and receive the old parchment, or, as it is known to the mass of the great unwashed (with apologies to Professor Plummer), the old sheepskin, from the hands of some noted dignitary, while Mom, Pop, Aunt Susie, Uncle Silas, and all the kids sniffle a quiet obligato.

You can tell a senior by:
(1) The slightly supercilious smirk on his superior schnoz.

(2) The tolerant attitude adopted toward freshmen, as in conflict with the bloodthirsty juniors and sophomores.

(3) The jingling chain loaded down with keys, exhibited to all upon all occasions.

(4) The look of melancholia accompanying the last days of school.

(5) The lack of concern directed upon the want ads of all newspapers.

(6) The overloaded pawnshops, that revel in keys and fraternity pins.

(7) The general concern in business offices, preceding the overcrowded industry of office boys.

(8) The way he hurries to eight o'clock's, as contrasted with the indifference of his former three years.

Seniors are always worrying about:
(1) All the senior fees, and how they are to pay them.

(2) Comprehensive exams.

"THERE'S A DIXIE DEALER NEAR YOU"

George H. Kerler, Kernel associate editor, was seriously burned about the face and hands late yesterday when a newsroom typewriter caught fire as he was battering out his inimitable "Voice of the People" column in his familiar put-put style.

Speaking from a bed in a local hospital, Kerler said that his typewriter had been feeling warm all day and when he started to type a hotcha note about Campus Sweetheart Irene Sparks the sparks caught his machine afire. Hot air from other columnists who were present in the newsroom fanned the blaze into a seething inferno.

After four alarms had been turned in, the blaze was put out by the Lexington fire department. There was some delay in turning in fire alarms as Virginia Robinson was using the newsroom phone. Managing Editor Ray Lathrem proved the hero of the occasion by sprinting to the Kernel business office where he managed to get through a call for help. There is some talk that Lathrem did not stop at the business office but kept on running. This is malicious rumor, for Lathrem was going to a phone; not away from the blaze.

An amusing incident was added to the near tragedy when reporter Irvin Danziger tried to interview a fire truck.

Hospital attendants say that Kerler will recover. In fact they optimistically predict that the columnist will be able to hold a beer mug again within three weeks.

broke three. She even gets mixed up and says egg-over-light every time she gets a cup of coffee because she has waited on him so many times that she just naturally associates an egg-over-light with a cup of coffee.

Girls in love have been known to walk as far as three and a half blocks to get the pin she forgot to put on before going to school. Once someone hid it when she was out of the room and she nearly had hysterics when she couldn't find it.

Times when she goes home are times that try a girl's faith. He's been home about an hour—"Oh, I miss him so much, I wish he would hurry and come back." If any one sings "I've Got My Love to Keep Me Warm" or "Boo Hoo, You've Got Me Crying For You" she nearly goes into tears. "Honey, please don't sing that song, you're breaking my heart."

A lot of people do a lot of crazy things but no one does anything half so crazy as a person who is crazy with love.

There are times when she is all ready and "rarin' to go" right on the minute and he hasn't appeared yet. She begins to frown, straightens an imaginary wrinkle in her dress and fusses with her hair. Two minutes later now—she dabs at her nose and re-paints her lips, then twiddles her purse handle. A worried look creeps over her face. She has looked at her watch ten times in the last three minutes. At five minutes past she begins to storm.

"Oh, my gosh, why doesn't he come on if he is coming? If he stands me up I'll—I'll—oh, I'll simply die."

Sometimes she can't get ready enough to suit her fancy. She is flying around like a chicken with its head cut off.

"He'll be here in five minutes and I haven't a stitch on. Honey, you've gotta lend me your stockings. I've got a run. There's the door bell, good grief, where are my garters?"

Sometimes she gets quite "fixy."

He's waiting downstairs quite patiently while she puts on the finishing touches.

"Does the collar look all right? Does my slip show now? Are my stockings seams straight? Do I have a too much rouge? Oh, for gosh sakes tell me I look nice!"

She very daintily touches-up her lips a little more then sets her hat on with more carefulness than the Archbishop had when he set the jeweled top-piece on George VI.

She acts funny when she comes home, too.

Can you imagine how it would feel to have someone come in in the middle of the night, flop down on top of your bed, turn you over and hug and kiss you, then exclaim: "Oh, honey, I've had the bestest time? Well, get your roommate in love and you will find out."

"Oh-h-h darling, I'm so happy I could burst! He really has what it takes." Then she will start slinging superlatives with a lot of "ohs" and "ahs" and a lot of huge sighs mixed in with them. She tells every detail about him from the color of his socks to how he kisses. (Sometimes she uses demonstrations too.) Sometimes it affects her differently.

She thinks the other occupant of the room is asleep. In fact she is very careful to make not a sound so that no one will wake up. She has a dreamy look in her eyes as she undresses and very carefully hangs her skirt upside down in the press and puts her gloves in the writing drawer. She walks to the mirror, looks at herself critically then smiles very fascinatingly. She picks up the hand mirror and turns around to get a back view. She fluffs up her hair then combs it again. She practices a few alluring smiles, rolls her eyes, sighs and begins to rub cream.

She's goofy. An donce there was a little girl who spilled two glasses of iced tea on the floor the night after he got put out of the boarding house where she works. The same night she turned over a tray of glasses and

Reds From du Pont Upset Twenty-Six Schools

The Big Red thimble from Du Pont Manual copped the annual high school track and field meet Saturday afternoon on Stoll cow pasture as their men cavorted and capered around the aforesaid pasture to garner the total of 57 points while Newport panted in second by the slightly smaller score of 34 markers.

This was the 18th anniversary of the blessed event of this annual meeting, and two state records were broken, while one was left intact but greatly disturbed when it was equalled.

Bob Scholtz of Manual was the individual star of the carnival. This young man set a new record for the high hurdles at :15.6, replacing the old record of :15.8 made by Schutte of Henderson's Barrett Manual. Scholtz, gathering in a total of 12 points for the meet, was barely nosed out in the low hurdles and came in third for the broad jump.

This is the eighth victory for Manual in the annual "High School Harry" classic. They were defeated last year by the Male High of Louisville, defending champions, who placed fourth in this meet, with 18 points, behind Highlands high school, of Ft. Thomas, with 26 marks.

George Getschow, of K. M. L., the soldiers' pride, and Don Baumgardner, of Newport, were double winners on the cinder path, with a gale to back them. This high wind was the cause of much comment, and the records set Saturday afternoon were allowed only after discussion by the judges. Getschow took the century dash and the fastest division of the 440-yard dash, while Baumgardner came in ahead of the field in the mile and half-mile.

Besides Scholtz's mark in the high hurdles, a record of :23.6 was set in the low hurdles by Fishback of Male, replacing the year-old record of :24.3, set by a teammate, Stark, of Yale. The 220-yard dash run was made by Luker, of Highlands in :22.2, to equal the 12 year-old mark made by Eckerle of Male.
